

CLIMBING CAUSE OVER SIXTY DEATHS

TERRIBLE FLOODS SWEEP MOUNTAIN TOWNS IN SOUTHWESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

LAND LIES DESOLATE

Buildings and Crops Washed Away by Catastrophes Which Raged Down Mountain Sides—Damage Incalculable.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pittsburg, July 25.—More than 60 lives were claimed Wednesday by floods and cloudburst in southwestern Pennsylvania and West Virginia and hundreds of homes and business houses were destroyed.

Fifty-five lives were snuffed out in Superba mine No. 2, near Uniontown. Seventy-five miners narrowly escaped death, while from many other sections come reports of lives lost by the mountain torrents rushing into mine slopes.

Uniontown, Pennsylvania, leads the list of known dead with 15.

Several towns are without railway, mail, telephone and telegraph communications.

From West Virginia cities no reports can be obtained because wires are down. It will be several weeks before the complete loss of life is known.

During the night, meagre reports filtered in that if later verified, will run the list of fatalities up to 61. The places and the number reported to have drowned are, as follows:

Uniontown, Pa., 14 drowned; Smock, Pa., 14 reported drowned; Grandstone, Pa., 14 miners missing and reported drowned; Linn, Pa., 2 miners reported drowned; Wheeling, W. Va., 3 drowned; Lemont, Pa., 4 miners reported drowned; Ellenwood, Pa., H. T. King, his wife and child drowned; New Martinsville, 6 reported drowned; Monongah, W. Va., 1 drowned. To this list of 61 fatalities it has been possible to account definitely for 23.

Those who are known to have met death are at Uniontown, Wheeling, Ellenwood, Fairmont and Monongah.

Hundreds of families deserting homes in a mad rush for safety on the mountain sides, sought shelter beneath improvised shacks and tents toward the construction of which every available piece of debris was turned to account. At day-break shivering women and children gazed over the scene of the devastation on the upper Youghioginy valley and as the waters receded, upturned dwellings, shattered buildings and crumbling piles of mortar were held in a conglomerate mass by a railroad bridge or trestle or the progress of the debris had been impeded by some larger and stancher building.

It was long after midnight before the waters began to recede. Rain had ceased to fall some hours earlier but the heavy precipitation soon made the usually dry beds of mountain streams veritable cataclysms.

The cloudburst of yesterday came before the district had recovered from more than 24 hours of torrential rains on Sunday and with every stream bank full, soon all were out of their banks.

This morning as the waters cleared away a stricken community gazes aghast at the power of the elements. Heavy rocks have been split, heavy railroad iron has been lifted from almost solid beds and dropped into rivers while on all sides deep scars mark the surface of the earth where the crowding waters have made new courses for themselves.

Dunbar, near Conneville was inundated. The waters raged through the streets upsetting massive structures and endangering the lives of hundreds of persons. A cloudburst was the cause, although it is thought a dam broke.

The Turtle Creek valley was visited by a disastrous flood and damage is enormous. Crops were blotted from the earth.

Railroad traffic throughout a great territory is demoralized. With four connections into Uniontown the Pennsylvania was unable to get passengers into the city today.

Hundreds are homeless, thousands are suffering, towns are cut off from railroad, mail, telephone and telegraph connections and are in darkness and without fuel.

From West Virginia no reports can be secured by the weather bureau.

It was in the coke region that the fury of the storm seemed to have spent. Uniontown, Dunbar, Mount Braddock, Conneville, all were inundated and suffered great damage.

START AT DAYLIGHT TO MEET THEIR FOE

Blues Break Camp Early Today And Advance to Meet Reds Near Tomah in Army Maneuvers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Camp Douglas, July 25.—The battle between the reds composed wholly of United States regular troops and the blues composed of regular troops and state militia began at dawn today.

On the theory that the reds have invaded a hostile country by crossing the Mississippi river at La Crosse and already have planted their flag in the interior as far as Tomah, 15 miles east of Sparta, the blues broke camp at daylight and hastened to meet their foe.

It is expected the two armies which are to fight out a minute campaign on a basis as near actual fighting as possible will not face each other within the next thirty six hours because much theoretical hurraing of bridges and blowing up of railroads is to be done to harass the advancing enemy.

Many state and federal military experts are with the troops.

In a letter he just received Miss Gould declared that many preachers would be without work and without wives and homes were it not for old maids.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., JULY 25.—An important convention of the Indiana locals of the United Mine Workers of America assembled here today. The purpose of the convention, as set forth in the call for the gathering, is to consider the advisability of refusing to pay the international tax and determine who is responsible for the action of the scale committee at the Cleveland interstate conference last spring by which the Indiana miners could not insist on their demand for the weekly pay day as provided by the Indiana law. The possibility of the Indiana miners seceding from the national organization in the event that their demands are refused is being freely discussed, but it is not considered likely that the convention will decide upon taking such an extreme step.

ROSENTHAL MURDER REMAINS A MYSTERY

Gangsters Suspected of Gambler's Death Still Elude Effort to Find Their Capture.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 25.—Efforts to discover the identity of the man who plotted the death of the gambler Hermann Rosenthal, have been balked for the time by the failure of the police to round up the gang that murdered Rosenthal in front of the hotel Metropole. Nine days have now elapsed since the gambler was slain and with the exception of Harry Vallon who surrendered himself not one of the passengers in the gray auto has been brought to headquarters by police although several of the supposed assassins have been seen in the city during the past week.

"Bald Jack" Rose whom District Attorney Whitman and Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty believed to have been the managing mind behind the plot still is of the belief that the "police system" will protect him, though the public prosecutor has let it become known that Rose will be treated with leniency if he discloses the names of the real conspirators.

WISCONSIN BANKERS IN SESSION AT MILWAUKEE POSTPONE FORMATION OF INSURANCE COMMISSION.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, July 25.—The proposed formation of an insurance commission by the state bankers for the insurance of bank deposits proved too big a question for the Wisconsin Bankers' Association to handle at this year's convention and it was decided today to refer the plan back to the executive committee which after conferring with the proper committee of the state legislature will modify it and present it before a special meeting of the association.

A second resolution introduced by F. E. Woodward, Watertown and adopted indicates the association as a body to be opposed to any form of compulsory guarantee of bank deposits.

Officers will be elected late this afternoon. The probable selections are: President, E. A. Dow, of Plymouth; vice president, H. A. Moehle, of Clinton; treasurer, H. G. Fliche, of Wausau.

TELLS BANKERS HOW TO AID AGRICULTURE

Prof. K. L. Hatch of University Suggests Fixing Higher Qualifications For Teachers Of Agriculture.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25.—Before the Wisconsin Bankers' association here today, Prof. K. L. Hatch, associate professor of agricultural education at the University of Wisconsin, proposed three measures which he declared the bankers should encourage if they desire to aid in the agricultural development of the state and believe in education as a means to this end. He stated them as follows:

First: A measure fixing the qualifications of teachers of agriculture at a standard sufficiently high to ensure adequate preparation.

Second: A measure recognizing efficient preparation in teachers of agriculture by larger subsidies for schools employing such teachers.

Third: A measure accepting the county agricultural representative plan as a policy of the state and providing for its expansion to meet existing demands.

"These things will ultimately increase the agricultural prosperity of Wisconsin," said Prof. Hatch. "They should receive no uncertain support from this association as a whole and from each one of its members individually interested in his own rural community."

Prof. Hatch spoke appreciatively of the work of the county schools of agriculture, seven of which have been established under the terms of a law passed eleven years ago which gave the movement stimulus in the way of an annual subsidy of $4,000 to each school, and which later was raised to from $6,000 to $8,000, depending upon average daily attendance.

"The character of the work done by these schools," he said, "the class of students which they attract who would not now be in any other school, and the general results obtained have fully justified the wisdom of the legislature in providing for their establishment. These schools have pioneered the subject, developed and organized the way, created an atmosphere favorable to agricultural teaching throughout the state, and convinced the public that such instruction should have a place in our secondary educational system. We are now ready to move on, and the rapidly with which high schools are developing courses of study in agriculture is abundant evidence of a widespread sentiment in favor of such instruction."

QUESTION SHELDON ON CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Treasurer of National Republican Committee Explains Contributions Received in 1904.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 25.—George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the national republican committee in 1908, today told the senate committee investigating campaign funds his version of the late Edward L. Harriman's contribution to Roosevelt's campaign in 1904. Mr. Sheldon said he knew unofficially that J. P. Morgan & Company and Henry C. Frick, were contributors in 1904. The late Cornelius N. Bliss, was treasurer then but Mr. Sheldon was associated with him in an unofficial capacity. He could not remember the amounts which the Morgan firm or Mr. Frick gave in 1904, but classed them among the large contributors to that campaign.

Mr. Sheldon was asked about the Harriman contribution. He said that Gov. O'Dell had asked for some money. Mr. Bliss said he had no money but he would see what he could do. He went to Mr. Harriman and Mr. Harriman got—Mr. Harriman, with Mr. Bliss—got together some $250,000 and that amount was handed to the state committee and never went into the national committee.

"Do you know of any contribution in 1904 by anyone connected with the United States Steel Corporation?" inquired Mr. Clapp.

"It is difficult to answer that; not to my personal knowledge," replied Mr. Sheldon. He gave similar answers to questions about the "tobacco trust," the "harvester trust," "the sugar trust" standard oil, "The American Protective League and various manufacturers as well.

SMILES AT REPORTS OF BRYAN'S ACTIONS

Roosevelt Not Disturbed by News That Bryan Is to Follow His Trail Through the Campaign.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oyster Bay, July 25.—Col. Roosevelt smiled today when he was told of reports that William J. Bryan would follow his trail through the campaign.

"Bryan?" he asked, the colonel's jaw shot forward aggressively and his teeth came together. "I don't see that there is anything for me to say at this time," he added.

It was pointed out that Col. Roosevelt and Col. Bryan have crossed swords in two national campaigns and that the president is thoroughly familiar with the characteristics of the Nebraska while thus far he has not had opportunity to become acquainted with the fighting qualities of the democratic nominee of 1912.

Col. Roosevelt intends to attack the democratic and republican organizations with equal vigor as already he has done in the hope of placing his opponents on the defensive at the outset.

The Little Things are often the biggest things in the paper

(By W. C. Kenaga.)
No item in an advertisement is so small that it is not read.
Let a compositor make an error which happens to get by the proof-reader, and both the store and newspaper bear from it immediately. Particularly is this true when the mistake is in a selling price which appears absurdly low.

Lined up with the readers of advertisements you'll find those who so often say, "I never read the advertisements," all with copies of the newspaper in hand, ready and anxious to profit by the low price.
Sometimes a store tries out a newspaper by inserting a bargain in small type. A few weeks ago a department store, which on Thursday runs a page of "100 remarkable Friday bargains," tickled away in an inch space an offer of "10 bars of Fels Napha Soap for 25c." Did anyone overlook it? The store thinks not—men and women came early, kept coming all day until THREE CARLOADS of the soap had been sold, which was all the store had on hand!

Newspaper advertising is a light of publicity shining with an enormous candlepower.
Undoubtedly a Gentleman.
In an outward bound Dorchester car the other evening there was not a seat left. A lady entered and not a man noticed her standing, apparently. Finally one man rose from his seat and offered it to the lady. She thanked him, adding: "You are the only gentleman in the car." She was startled by the answer, "Yer betcher life I am, kiddo."—Boston Journal.

SAFETY DEVICES CAN REDUCE INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS BY HALF

Object Can Be Accomplished Says Mr. Price of State Industrial Commission in Talk Last Evening.

That industrial accidents can be reduced by fifty per cent was the statement made by Mr. Price of the State Industrial Commission, who with Prof. John R. Commons, also of the commission, gave talks last evening at the city hall assembly room on the working of the recently enacted safety appliance laws. Mr. Price was formerly connected with the International Harvester Company and has made an extensive investigation of what can be accomplished in safeguarding workmen. His statement is based in part upon the statistics of the Illinois Steel Company, a pioneer in the installation of safety devices. Since they have made such installation the number of serious accidents has been reduced as much as sixty-five per cent. Thirteen hundred men are employed by Wisconsin Steel Company in State mills. In the year 1911, when the company made a concerted effort to prevent accidents they reduced the number of hours work lost through accidents to 49,000. Mr. Price maintained that as much as one-third of all industrial accidents are the result of inadequate safe-guarding of machinery.

Prof. John R. Commons, who preceded Mr. Price on the program, devoted most of his talk to explaining the methods pursued by the Industrial Commission in carrying out its purpose of reducing the number of industrial accidents and obtaining adequate compensation for the injured. Rather than appear justifiable in the performance of their duties they chose to confer and come to effective and friendly agreements with the manufacturers. Committees were appointed to meet with other committees representing the most prominent industries of the state, and the rules and regulations were made at the suggestion of the factory men themselves. It is aimed to make the rulings of the commission entirely practical and constitutional, and yet have them adequately protect the life, health, safety and welfare of the employees.

Accidents in the state, according to statistics gathered by the Industrial Commission, average about 12,000 a year, only those that cause loss of employment for more than one week being counted. Only 500, one tenth of 5,000 manufacturing establishments in the state, have chosen to come under the law, which includes about 70,000 workmen. Only twenty out of 6000 accidents reported to the commission by factories under the new law have been appealed to the commission for settlement, and but three of these have been carried up to the courts for final settlement.

The statistics for the last eight months contain some interesting comparative figures. In that period there occurred 5241 accidents. The largest number under any one classification collapses, hit by objects, 11,092. Next in order are loadings and handling objects 600; tools, hanging objects 384; inflammable, hot, or corrosive substances 297; falls over objects in passageways 337; saw, 247; presses, 175; falls from scaffolds, 128; falls from ladders, 78; amery wheels, 75; corn huskers, 68. The smallest number of accidents listed under any one classification are the boiler explosions in which 11 were injured. The figures show that more accidents occurred in lumbering than in any other one industry, the number being 881. Closely approaching it are foundries and metal works, 873; trade and commerce, 466; iron and steel mills and pulp and paper mills, 381; and agricultural implements, 246. Clay, glass and stone industries come next, the floor of the list with only forty accidents.

Out of the 5241 accidents in the last eight months 112 were fatal. Among the limbs lost in accidents were 26 who lost one hand, 2 who lost both hands, 3 lost a foot, 4 a leg, 13 an eye, and 10 an arm; 372 fingers, and 8 toes. There were 701 fractures.

The pictures in the exhibit were used effectively in illustrating the talks, and were examined carefully by those who came to hear the speakers. The speakers were introduced by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty who acted as chairman of the evening.

Temperature in Badger State Influenced Chiefly by Latitude Says Government Expert.

There is a large area of the country in northeastern Wisconsin that has very strange climate conditions, said Eric Miller of the government weather department in Madison in a recent address.

Mr. Miller first dwelt upon the factors that influence the climate of Wisconsin, namely, latitude, its location in the middle of the continent and in proximity to the Great Lakes. There are no mountains in this state, however, to make any difference in elevation which usually has the greatest effect on climate conditions. The distribution of rainfall in Wisconsin is very uniform and all of the state receives a copious supply of rains.

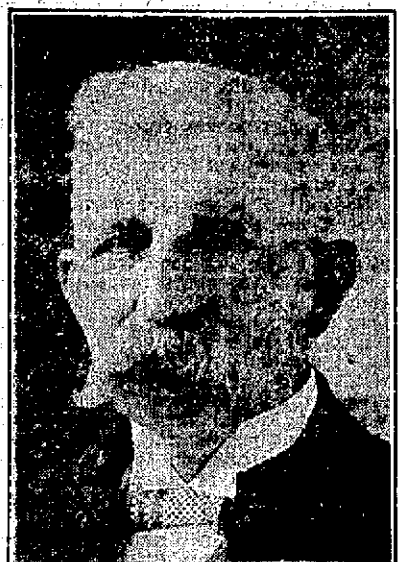

Passing on to the variations in temperature Mr. Miller claimed that in summer time the country along the lakes is cool, while the Mississippi valley has a very warm climate. In winter the northern and central portions of the state are very cold while the southwestern portion is the warmest.

perature during the summer and is checked with beautiful little lakes. One of the most curious things in Wisconsin is that the crop districts are influenced by the heat districts. Professor Taylor has made a chart of growing conditions and it shows that the great crop regions are all in the warmer sections of the state.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor:

Will you kindly republish the following item taken from one of the Chicago morning papers, Thursday, July 25. If you care to make any comment on it you are liberty to do so.

Following the announcement by retailers of Los Angeles that the price of potatoes is lower than for ten years comes the news that compared with last year most vegetables on the market are cheaper now—and this despite reports from the East that the cost of living would go higher this year. Potatoes sell now at 18 pounds for 25 cents in the big retail markets downtown, and even cheaper in some outside stores.

Tomatoes, that gold at this time last year at 10 and 15 cents a pound, are now 5 cents a pound.

String beans that could be bought no cheaper than 10 cents a pound last year, are selling now at 5 cents a pound.

Bermuda brown onions were 5 cents a pound at this time last year. They are 7 and 8 pounds for 25 cents now. Silverskins were 5 cents a pound; now they are 3 pounds for 10 cents. Lima beans now bring 25 cents for 3 pounds, at this time last year they were 2 pounds for 25 cents.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS HAVE SETTLED THE CAMP

Now Established at Delavan Lake For Their Annual Outing—Swimming Lessons.

Over twenty-five members of the local Y. M. C. A. arrived at Delavan Lake yesterday and settled down for a ten days' outing. Although the most of the party went over on the train, three of the lads enjoyed a cross country trip on their bicycles which proved very pleasant despite the warm weather, and two auto loads of small boys also took the overland route.

The boys are comfortably located in two cottages, one of which is partly used as the dining room. A tent is also furnished for those who wish to sleep out of doors.

Baseball games were soon in progress after which the entire company adjourned to the lake where they spent a short time before supper. Regular swimming hours were appointed, thirty minutes in the morning and again in the afternoon. Those who could not swim were given their first instructions and those who could enjoyed the sport to the fullest extent.

Elaborate plans for the week have been made by Mr. J. C. Kline and Physical Director T. C. Hartwell who are in charge of the camp. On Friday morning early the boys will start for Lake Geneva, where they will be treated to a trip through the great Yerkes observatory and a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. camp grounds at that place.

Later in the week a fifteen mile walk around the shores of Delavan Lake is to be taken and several other shorter trips of interest are on the program. Baseball, races, swimming and many other sports will fill in the remainder of the time. Several fishing trips will be taken at various times during the camp besides the trips which individuals will indulge in.

Altogether five boats have been placed at the disposal of the boys and will be in use most of the time, probably by those who wish to fish or take trips down the lake. One of these boats is a large one which will hold a party of eighteen or twenty boys at once and serve the purpose of a launch when a large number wish to go at once. The swimming facilities are of the best, the water being clear and warm and an excellent springboard being furnished on the swimming pier.

One of the cottages in which the boys live is situated next to Mr. Kline's cottage in which there is a spare room to be used in case of any sickness or accident to any of the party and proper care can be given them. Everything which will add to the safety of the campers and previous accidents of a serious nature is being done by those in charge and, as the number is not so large as usual it is thought that the very best care can be taken of all the members of the party at all times.

Those in charge of the camp are Mr. Kline and Mr. Hartwell, assisted by Rollo Dobson, Ray Edler and Ray Barnes, and the party is as follows: Robert Jeffris, Merrill Nowlan, Robert Parnsworth, William Parnsworth, Cuthbert Bladen, Sherwood Sheldon, Walter Williams, John Ford, Valentine Weber, Clem Jackman, William Korst, Claude Navock, George Cassidy, Eugene Rich, Deane Kimball, O. Nuzum, and Allen Taylor. Paul Richards, Stanley Metcalf and Frederick Cummings are expected to arrive on Friday and spend the rest of the time at the camp.

Altogether the boys are having a glorious time at the lake and intend to make good use of their stay over there to enjoy themselves. Although this year's roll is much smaller than in previous years the boys nevertheless are planning to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent during the ten short days they will be there.

Hard to Avoid Him.

I noticed that the eyes of my little son were not looking as bright as usual and the lids were just a little inflamed. I asked him the cause of it and he suggested that perhaps the picture show the evening before had tired him. That same day a little boy rushed up to him and put his arm around him. I saw that the lad had a bad case of sore eyes. I said: "O son, don't let your little friend get so close to you again; stay quite a little ways from him." My boy looked at me and said, "Mudder, I can't, he is at the foot of the class, and I am next to him."—Exchange.

Mrs. Wood of this city gave an inspiring talk to the teachers of the summer session yesterday afternoon on the subject, "How to Resurrect a Dead School." Although a lady advanced in years she retains an active and helpful interest in school affairs.

Session to Close.
The summer session will close next week after six weeks' successful and profitable work. Examinations will be conducted next Thursday and Friday.

Moore Will Speak.
Charles E. Moore, of the town of Magnolia, president of the training school board, will speak at the closing exercises of the summer session next week on the subject, "The Needs of Our Country Schools."

Many Have Positions.
About forty of the young people who have been attending the summer school will begin teaching next fall. Most of them have positions at present although inquiries for teachers are being received every day. Four of these are young men two of whom expect to teach in South Dakota.

LAYS WASTE IN ROAD BUILDING TO SYSTEM

W. O. Hotchkiss Secretary of Wisconsin Highway Commission Says Methods Are Antiquated.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25.—The huge waste in road building in this state in years is due primarily to the antiquated system followed, in the opinion of W. O. Hotchkiss, secretary of the Wisconsin highway commission who spoke before the Wisconsin Bankers' association here today.

"Are the poor roads—unfortunately so plentiful—due to the fact that we simply haven't paid enough money," he asked, "or have we been paying the money and not getting the results? In other words, is our present road business efficient or not? As to this we have the verdict of 500 of the most intelligent farmers I could reach. The average of their estimates was that about 50 percent of our road funds were wasted. This waste is due primarily to our antiquated system. There are 16,000 town road officials, each one of whom has his little share of the road taxes to spend practically as he sees fit. Under these conditions it isn't the road official who is to be blamed it is the system that permits the diffusion of the road money into such small parts that they must necessarily be spent inefficiently even in the hands of good men. If anyone were to suggest that the railroads adopt a similar policy for maintaining their line, even the most ardent opponents of change in our road system would laugh him out of court. But there is no reason why the public business should not be as wisely conducted as a private business, and we should not rest content until it is.

Prof. Hotchkiss said that one of the surest signs of a dead country is poor roads. He pointed out the saving in the cost of distribution effected by good roads, and mentioned the fact that the best schools and good conditions are never found where roads are bad. In conclusion he gave a description of the workings of the new state highway law. He said that only six counties are not constructing roads in 1912 under this law, and three of these have voted to take it up in 1913. Many of them are going in very heavily, he said, issuing bonds to pay for the work. Ashland county will have a total of $50,000 to spend on its county roads this year. Walworth county $28,133; Sauk county $35,367; Florence county $20,000; Grant county $48,915; Portage county $21,418; Rusk county $18,419, and Pierce county $19,137.

Mental Wabblers Win No Victory.

Mental wabblers win no victories in either business or social life.

The wabblers are always at the mercy of every one who wishes to lead her into any special net. Dressmakers and milliners make thousands of dollars annually through this channel. There is nothing finer than being able to decide quickly in an emergency and to act intelligently and without faltering. The most forlorn and hopeless cry in the world is the wail of not knowing what to do. It is the stamp of incapability.

Warm Thanks.

FLORIDA GIRL CHARGED WITH MURDER REGAINS FREEDOM WITHOUT A STRUGGLE

Miss Ola Gunter.

Birmingham, Ala.—Ola Gunter, the young woman who was brought here recently from Jacksonville, Fla., charge with the murder of Guy R. the men who died a year and a half ago from drinking poisoned whiskey, is telling her friends what a fine time she had during the two days of her incarceration.

While in Birmingham she was detained in the Hotel Hillman, and as soon as her presents were made known here, her friends poured in on her, bringing flowers and dainties in profusion. She had no opportunity to get lonesome, and if the notoriety which surrounded her affected her spirits, it seemed to elevate rather than depress them. A joy ride served to break the monotony of eating and sleeping and resting. And morbid, Birmingham enjoyed it, too. The hotel lobby was packed and whenever the girl appeared she was greeted by a universal grating of necks. Her every movement was followed.

At the end of the second day of the girl's detention, her apparent enjoyment of the situation and that of the crowd was suddenly cut short by the announcement of the sheriff that there was no evidence against the girl; and that she would be immediately released.

The tragic death of the two men early in 1911 thus remains a mystery. The police have recently arrested Mrs. Ida Shmidt, charging her with the crime, but she denies having had anything to do with it.

In the meantime the sheriff's office still maintains that Miss Gunter knows much that would clear up the problem.

Irish tobacco and Irish cigars and cigarettes are bought in Dublin with patriotic pride and smoked with enjoyment, and it may be only a matter of time when Irish cigarettes will be known the smoking world over. The raising of tobacco in Ireland is one of the new industries which are being undertaken, and the quality is pronounced good.

Con Walsh formerly of New York, now a member of the Seattle Athletic club, recently broke the world's record in the fifty-six pound weight event by throwing the weight 15 feet 2 1/4 inches over a bar, one inch higher than his own record.

The ranking committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis association has taken the first steps toward the listing of every player in the country. Robert D. Wrenn, president of the association, insists that the record of every governing body be procured for the governing body. Under his direction the ranking committee is to nationalize the game, bringing to the front every player of prominence in every state.

Just consider some of those Finnish athletes. Nicklander put the shot 48 feet 11 1/2 inches with his right hand at the Olympic games, and was beaten out by Ralph Rose and McDonald in the two-handed shot putting by only a few inches. He looks like a coming world's champion and record holder.

When they get organized athletics in Finland that little country may become a serious contender against Uncle Sam for first honors.

Mike Gibbons will return to New York in the fall and begin a campaign which he hopes will secure for him the middleweight championship of the world. He is now at his home in St. Paul, Minn., trying to pick up a few more pounds.

Even at his present weight there are many who think he could outpoint any of the prominent middleweights in a ten-round bout. The truth is that crack lightweight fighters are scarce these days. Gibbons is the most likely one of the lot, and he should be able to go through all the others with ease when he gains a few more pounds.

Pitcher Moore of the Galveston club, who is known as the strike-out king of the Texas league, has been purchased by the Cincinnati Reds.

Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight champion, didn't remain in America as long as he had planned, the hot weather playing havoc with him. He left New York for home on June 23.

Well's present plan is to take a four or six weeks' rest, then start training again, and return to America next fall. He wants to get another chance at Al Paizer.

"You Americans are mighty hospitable folks and I like you," said Wells before he set sail. "When I arrive in London I shall tell the English sporting public that Americans know how to be fair."

Looks as if the national commission would try to mete out some punishment to Mr. O'Neil of the Meridian (Miss.) club for trying to unseat Pitcher Hirsch on the Cincinnati Reds for a fat sum after Hirsch had put his arm on the hummer and couldn't pitch a ball. Ben Johnson, with blood in his eye, advocates going after these minor league magnates who try to sell damaged goods to the major league clubs. Mr. Johnson believes that, where such action can be proved to be deliberate, the offender should be barred from organized baseball. O'Neil's case will be taken up at once by the national commission.

Simple Home Remedies.
Lemon syrup, made by baking a lemon 20 minutes and then squeezing the juice upon half a cupful of sugar, is excellent for hoarseness and to break up a cold. Excellent for sprains is a starch poultice. Pour boiling hot water on starch, spread on linen and apply hot. Poultices may also be made of hops, hemlock or charcoal; medicated poultices may contain almost any drug ordered. An old-fashioned lotion for a cold sore: Take two parts of castor oil to one part of spirits of camphor. Mix and bathe the sore frequently. The effect will be quickly noticeable. This simple lotion heals the most annoying cold sore in a short time. Flaxseed lemonade is an excellent thing for colds and is made as follows: Steep two tablespoonfuls of flaxseed in one quart of hot water for 15 minutes; stir in the juice of three lemons, a cupful of sugar and a wine glass of wine. Drink either hot or cold.

THREE LOCAL MEN IN THE GOLF CONTESTS

Baker, Tallman and Schaller Still Playing For Various Cups At State Tournament.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25.—Play was commenced this morning under ideal weather conditions for the championship, president cup and director cup fights in the Wisconsin State Golf Championship tournament at the Blue Mound Country club.

The feature of the morning play was the defeat of Dick Kavanagh, Kenosha by Malcolm Kehlow, a member of his own club. This was quite a surprise as most of the followers of the tournament had it that Ned Allis on one side and Kavanagh on the other would meet in the finals for the title.

At the end of the morning play one member each from Blue Mound, the Milwaukee and the Kenosha country clubs, and the Maple Bluff country club of Madison, survived the first rounds of elimination play, in the championship fight, Harry F. Hadfield, Ned Allis and F. W. Jacobs being the winners.

J. B. Baker of Janesville, defeated W. A. Dawson of the Blue Mound country club, four up and two to play in the third flight of the director's cup.

In the medal play for the innovation cup A. Schaller of Janesville had a gross score of 90 handicapped two total net 88. In the same medal play, S. D. Tallman also of Janesville, had a gross score of 97 with six handicap left a net score of 91.

While none of the Janesville players qualified in the first sixteen their individual scores gave three of them a place in the play for the other cups offered. J. P. Baker started in the Directors cup contest, which he won last year and Tallman and Al Schaller in the Innovation cup contests.

The individual scores of the local players were S. D. Tallman, 95-94, 139; E. J. Bavaman 100-102, 202; J. P. Baker, 94-91, 185; A. Schaller 84-87, 171; Fred Schaller 95-100, 206.

The pairings for the championship round also for the first and second flights and Innovation cup for those whose handicaps eliminate them from the first and second flights are as follows:

Championship Flight.
Allis vs. Hesch.
G. J. Carroll vs. C. D. Barnes.
G. J. Jacobs vs. R. D. Gordon.

est has been displayed by our democratic brethren in the past few weeks than in years past. They claim to see victory in sight and are organizing. Of course this is early in the campaign but still they insist that that will win. This should put stimulus into the republicans to be certain they select the best men available for county offices so that the fight may be a merry one.

THE FIRST TEST.

Candidates for assembly and state senate on the republican ticket should make a plain statement as to their attitude relative to allegiance to the republican nominees for president and vice president. This is a year of national election and no man can honestly run under the republican banner and at the same time plan to support a democratic or any other party candidate than the ones nominated at the Chicago convention.

Voters should ask the candidates their attitude on this question before they pledge them their support. Wisconsin is a republican state despite claims of the democrats to the contrary and of political demagogues that it is a doubtful territory, and to continue it so there must be no mistake in who is sent to the state legislature, in either the assembly or state senate.

Any candidate seeking preferment of the voters under the republican party name, should be ready to answer the question as to party loyalty. They should not hesitate for a minute. If they cannot honestly support the presidential nominee, William H. Taft, they should give the voters the right to know it and not seek office under false colors.

CHIEFLY OWNED BY FOREIGNERS.

William H. Seaton, a mining engineer who has had long experience in Mexico, has prepared an estimate of the ownership of the property and wealth of that country. It is a startling revelation of the extent to which the Mexican people must work for foreigners and see foreigners take the principal profits of Mexican industry and trade.

Aside from such property as retail stores, livestock, public institutions, houses and personal effects, the Mexicans own little of their own country. About seventy per cent of the railroad stocks belong to Americans and Englishmen. Only two per cent of the railroad bonds are held in Mexico by Mexicans. More than half of the bank stocks are owned by foreigners. The mines belong almost wholly to American and British investors, the forests greatly predominating. The smelters are chiefly American property. The great bulk of the national government's bonds are held in the United States, Great Britain and France.

The timber lands are owned mostly by foreigners and the cotton mills are nearly all French. More than half of the factories are the property of foreigners. The larger part of the steel railroads, the power plants and the electric lighting plants belong to British investors. The wholesale stores are chiefly French and German. The oil fields are almost wholly owned by Americans and the rubber plantations are the property of citizens of the United States.

How can Mexicans be expected to feel satisfied with such foreign ownership of the productive parts of their country? And how are they ever going to change existing conditions.

The craziest organization which meddles much in labor matters in America is the I. W. W.—the Industrial Workers of the World. The most powerful foes of this wild league of revolutionists are the trades unions—a good fact to remember.

Some of the athletes this country sent to Stockholm are still having the times of their lives in Europe, and it helps a lot to know that their fellow-citizens at home feel that nothing can be too good for them.

Wall street keeps its eyes on the crops rather than on the politicians. Wall street is accused of many things but not often of being stupid or blind to business factors.

Like many other things, impeachment of public officials works or does not work according to the driving power of public sentiment behind it.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SAY SECOND CHOICE WILL CAUSE MUDDLE

MEN FAMILIAR WITH MARY ANN LAW SKEPTICAL AS TO RESULTS AT COMING PRIMARY.

TO COST COUNTY MORE

Cost For Tally Sheets Alone Will be $50 More Than Under Old Plan—Chance For Contest.

Realizing that the second choice amendment to the primary election law as passed at the last session of the state legislature may cause a hopeless muddle in the primary election returns in the county as well as in the state, several candidates for office in Rock county at the September primary are advising their friends to pay no attention to the second choice column in casting their ballot. In this way they hope to prevent a possible wholesale discarding of ballots cast in good faith but which would be illegal owing to misunderstanding as a result of the added complexity in voting. It is also feared by some of the politicians more familiar with the machinery at the polls that a number of contests may result in various precincts and that very little betterment of existing conditions at the primary can be seen as a result of the "Mary Ann act" in comparison with the increased amount of work which it entails.

At the same time other candidates who have several opponents in the field are canvassing to secure the second choice vote as well as the first as they believe it will make a material difference in the primary result.

According to the terms of the "Mary Ann Law" a majority of the total number of votes cast for a given office is required for a candidate to secure the nomination on his party's ticket, except in the case where there are three men running for the same office the nomination will go to the candidate receiving the largest number of votes after the elimination of the third candidate, providing, of course, that one of the candidates has not a majority to start with.

In all cases where there are more than two names of men seeking the same office, providing no one secures a majority of the total vote, the man securing the lowest total number of first choice votes is eliminated and the second choice votes which appear after his name, or the second choice candidates of the men who favored the lowest man for first choice, are added to the first choice vote of the remaining candidates respectively.

If a majority of the total vote cast is then lacking to any candidate, the next lowest man is stricken from the list and the second choice votes for the other candidates behind his name are added to the respective first choice votes of the remaining candidates, and if only two are left, the one having the largest total is declared the nominee for the office.

It is freely predicted that complications will arise from this system of voting, not only with the voter at the polls but with the town clerks at the various precincts. It will probably take twice the time to count the votes as separate tallies must be kept of both the first and second choice vote.

Sample tally sheets were received today by the county clerk from a Milwaukee printer. These contain fifty-two pages, thirteen pages to each of the four parties, room being allowed for the first and second tallies of the candidates for three offices on one double page. According to estimates made these tally sheets will cost $5 cents each, and with two for each precinct the cost for the county for the tally sheets would be $62.90 or about $50 more than under the former plan.

It is possible that a meeting of the town, village and city clerks, and of the ballot clerks at the several precincts in the various cities of the county, may be called shortly at the court house for the purpose of studying the second choice provision in order to secure the most effective working at its first trial next September.

JUMPED FOURTEEN FEET WHILE SCANTILY CLAD

Robert Courtney Made Strenuous Effort to Evade Arrest This Afternoon—Locked All Doors.

Robert Courtney, whose name has become quite familiar in the police court made a desperate effort to evade arrest this afternoon at 209 South River street. Officer Dorn went to arrest him and found that Courtney had locked all the doors up stairs. Courtney then jumped to the roof of a neighboring house, and from that to the ground, a distance of about fourteen feet while wearing a hot weather attire too scanty for street wear. The officer caught him as he reached the ground and had to return to the house and dress him. He will probably be arraigned in court on a charge of intoxication tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. S. Nolan and Daughter Miss Vera Back in Janesville.

Mr. Thos. S. Nolan, who left Janesville a short time ago expecting to settle in Olympia, Washington, returned last evening, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Vera Nolan, having been compelled to forgo his plans for remaining in the west owing to climatic conditions.

Almost as soon as he reached Olympia, Mr. Nolan was afflicted with rheumatic troubles and physicians advised him to leave the country, fearing that the climatic conditions there might bring about further complications. Mr. Nolan and family have returned to Janesville but whether they will remain here is as yet undecided.

News of their arrival brought many visitors to the Myers Hotel where they are registered and Mr. Nolan held an informal reception in the office of the hotel greeting his many friends who were glad to welcome him back and urged him to alter his mind and remain in Janesville. Mr. Nolan is improved of his illness but still suffers. For the present he is undecided what he will do but it is hoped he will decide to remain in Janesville.

Miss Carlson, who was returning from Lake Waubesa to her home in Rockford, laid the purse beside her on the seat in the coach, to find it gone later. The pocketbook contained about ten dollars in money.

The Kid Goes to Camp

GREAT excitement prevailed in the home of John and Dolly. The Kid was going to camp.

"You don't think he'll catch cold sleeping out doors, do you?" anxiously asked Dolly for the fiftieth time. "You know he isn't used to anything like that."

"Of course he won't," replied John. "I'll do him good."

"Do you think he'll get enough to eat?" asked Dolly.

"I'll be his own fault if he doesn't. The food'll be on the table for him to want to eat, kid," went on John. "Pitch right in and get your share."

"But you mustn't be rude," admonished Dolly.

The Kid looked slightly bewildered at these diverse directions.

"And don't you let on you know anything about cooking or working," went on John, "or else they'll be putting it over you."

"But you mustn't be selfish," said Dolly, "or lazy."

The Kid looked still more doubtful of the proper course to pursue.

The great day at last came. John was to take the Kid to a certain station and there meet a Mr. Wilkins, who was to be in charge of the boys going to camp.

"I don't see how I am to know this Mr. Wilkins," said John. "I never laid eyes on him. And in the photograph sent us of those conducting the camp he wasn't marked in any way. Do you suppose he is the one with the whiskers?"

"I don't know," said Dolly. "But if you see a man with a bunch of boys, you'll know he's the one."

"He's deaf, too," went on John, dubiously.

John and the Kid arrived at the suburban junction where they were to meet the rest of the party, and John anxiously eyed the crowd for Mr. Wilkins. At last he saw a man with three or four boys.

"I thought there would be more boys than that," said John to the Kid. "But I guess he's the fellow."

He approached the man and, remembering Mr. Wilkins' deafness, yelled at the top of his lungs. "Are you Mr. Wilkins?"

"What's the matter with you? Are you crazy? My name isn't Wilkins. And I'm not deaf, either."

John apologized and explained.

The man looked mollified. "I saw a man with a bunch of boys round there by the freight shed," he volunteered. "Maybe that's him."

John sought the man by the freight shed and once more roared his question. He was rewarded with a cold stare. "What's chewing you?" demanded the man. "I'm not deaf."

John mopped his brow. "Hang it all, where is that man Wilkins? It's nearly train time."

The Kid was almost in tears.

Just then a man with a small army of boys was seen hastily making for a train that had just pulled in.

"That's him, Pop, that's him," excitedly yelled the Kid. "That's one of the men in the photograph."

John made a run for him. He asked one of the boys if they were going to Camp Rockledge, and when he said yes he kissed the Kid good-bye and shoved him in with the others, and mopped a perspiring brow as he watched the train pull out.

"Did you get him off all right?" asked Dolly at night.

"Slack as grease," said John.

"Do you think he'll be perfectly safe?"

"Of course. And he'll have the time of his life."

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

"Our work grows more nerve-racking every year," writes some expert either in nerves or finances, I don't remember which. Anyway, he coincides with all the pressure of continuous year pessimism to explain about our poor selves who are being driven around in a tearing flurry of nerves without the possibility of stopping or even undressing off and dozing. And it is especially important for women to realize this, I suppose, since they are the creatures whose nerves seem most upsetting to men of science and literature.

But why does it?

Is it because it is WORK, or is it because it is OUR WORK? I mean, is it because of the actual exigencies of the work itself or is it because we purely selfish and self-centered we make it so?

I believe it is the latter.

This is, contrary to all the sympathizers of the "poor tired business man" and the "poor nerve-racked business woman." But I believe it is true nevertheless.

Why are we nervous about our work? Why do we select nervous work? Why is it necessary for us to be driven to death?

Because we choose to. That's all. We just deliberately choose it.

There is no real reason why we shouldn't let up once in a while and take a rest under God's blue sky. There is no real reason why we shouldn't take things easy as we go along, and choose work that is pleasant, and, more important, within the range of our capabilities.

No reason except this: We are afraid of missing something. We are afraid we would make a few dollars less; attain less enviable heights; be considered of less importance among the paltry number of people who ever heard of us anywhere.

The girl who could make $10 a week—oh, yes, girls can live respectably and happily on $10 a week and less, regardless of David Graham Phillips and other nervous literatures—will strive with all her life to hold a position which means $12 and the increased admiration of her mates. Ambition, of course, is a good thing, but is it honest ambition that goes a girl on to coveting up her limitations until the hysteria of incompetency is the result?

We all have the right to choose, undoubtedly. Only when we do choose to work every minute with every nerve, simply for what it brings in material holdings, then let's not blame the wear on nerves and tempers upon the world, or the times, or anything else except our own selfish selves.

When they are transparent they are done. Have small serving plates waiting for them and when they are almost cool lift an apple onto each plate carefully. Use a spatula or broad knife so they will not break.

Add sugar to the syrup in the pan and boil it until a thick syrup results; add uncooked jelly or any fruit marmalade and remove from the fire. In the center of the apples place a pinch of cinnamon and a little powdered sugar and fill with the syrup, letting it run over the apple. When very cold, serve with whipped or thick cream. A garnish of Anglica and candied cherries makes the dessert still more elaborate.

If you have deep cake tins with removable rims, use them for fruit flans. Make a rich, short paste, as for tarts or fruit pies, and line the tins with it, pressing it well against the sides; make a fancy rim of paste above the edge of the ring. Fill with raspberries or with stoned cherries and plenty of sugar, or with gooseberries. You may put a lattice cover of the paste over it if you fancy it, but this is not necessary. Bake in a hot oven and as soon as done shake off the ring from the tin, but do not slide the flawn from the tin bottom. If cherries are used, seed them by hand and place in layers, so that the holes caused by removing the stones will be down. Dress each layer with powdered sugar.

Current shortcakes have more character than strawberry shortcakes. If you have doubts about the matter settle them by having a current shortcake. Make a biscuit dough, but add the yolks of two eggs well beaten with the milk and two tablespoons of sugar. Bake as with biscuits and when done open each one with a fork and spread with butter; fill with the currants, which should have been crushed and covered with sugar some two hours before. Put currants on the top and cover with the stiff white eggs sweetened. Serve with cream.

Baked peaches are as different from the stewed fruit as baked apples are from apple sauce. Miss Parloia used to say, and we will add that they are much better baked than cooked in any other way. Pour boiling water over the peaches until the skin slips off easily, place in a pan with a half an inch of water in it and sprinkle plentifully with sugar. Bake tender and serve with whipped cream.

Tea cakes of huckleberries or blueberries are perfectly satisfactory if made over this old-time recipe and eaten with sweet butter while hot. If you have honey or marmalade serve it with them; this is not an extravagant suggestion, for the combination is the quintessence of goodness.

Mix a cup of sugar with two tablespoons of butter, add one egg, and, alternately, three-fourths of a cup of milk and two and a half cups of flour, sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Mix well and stir the berries in lightly. Bake in gem pans or in a shallow buttered tin.

SUMMER VEGETABLES.

For those who enjoy a vegetable garden of their own, no plant will give more satisfaction than Swiss Chard. It is good the season through, during the growing season. Cook it in boiling water as any vegetable is cooked, then dress it with butter, vinegar and sliced hard cooked eggs as spinach is served, or it may be served cold as a salad. It will grow up again and again new tender leaves, so that it is an easy vegetable to care for.

Lettuce that has become too old and tough for eating fresh may be cooked and served as one does spinach. It makes a pleasant variety for the daily menu. Lettuce soup is another method of using the old tough leaves. This is made as one does any cream soup.

The color of peas and asparagus as well as spinach and any of the greens is a brighter green if the kettle in which the vegetable is cooked is left uncovered during the cooking.

A pretty way of serving new peas or asparagus is to prepare them with a rich white sauce, then hollow out rolls, butter well inside and brown, then fill the centers with the creamed vegetable, and serve hot.

Spanish Beans.—Take a half cup of sliced onions, stewed until tender, one of stewed tomatoes, one cup of stewed tomatoes. Boil until thick enough to serve on a dinner plate. Season with butter, salt and cayenne pepper.

Pepper beets will cook in an hour or less. Remove the skins after dropping them into cold water, then return to the fire and chop, season with butter, pepper and salt and a few drops of vinegar. Olive oil may be used in place of butter to advantage.

String beans are most palatable cooked for an hour or more with a slice of salt pork. Season with pepper and salt. If needed add a little vinegar, and serve hot.

Celery is nice stewed. Cook until tender, then serve with a white sauce on toast.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A MAID was once sent out from an employment bureau to a position, and on finding that the room in which she was expected to live was a wretched little hole, miserably furnished, with no paper on the walls, no arrangements for heating and one tiny window, told the lady of the house that she did not wish to stay, because she felt she could never make that room look homelike.

Whereupon she departed. And now the lady of the house goes about telling this experience as an illustration of how abominably presumptuous and uppish housework girls are becoming. And almost everywhere she tells it she receives sympathy. "The idea," exclaims her friends, "The idea. You simply can't do anything with them nowadays, they are so independent. Wouldn't stay because she couldn't make the room look homelike. What do they expect—guest chambers?"

My friends, it seems to me that in that little incident is illustrated one of the chief causes of the maid problem.

That a housework girl should want to have her room look homelike and should refuse to stay in a place where she couldn't make it so, seemed the acme of absurdity to these good women. They regarded it as unwarrantable independence on her part.

And yet a maid's bedroom means much more to her than her mistress's bedroom must also be her living room. If these women, who were most of them kind-hearted in other relations of life, had thought of the maid who wanted a homelike room as a human being, they wouldn't have seen anything extraordinary in her demands. But they were so in the habit of looking upon her as a distinct species of animal life—the genus maid, that they didn't think of applying to her the test of similar desires and needs.

There was a little story in the joke columns of one of the magazines the other day, which, to my mind, came almost as near pathos as humor. It ran something like this. A maid had asked leave to go home to her mother who is very ill. The mistress says she may go, only she mustn't stay long as she is much needed. At the end of a week the maid writes something to this effect: "Dear Mrs. —, I will be back real soon, and please keep my place for me. Mother is dying as fast as she can."

Probably that never happened, but if maids would assume the attitude many mistresses try to thrust upon them it certainly could have come to pass.

Undoubtedly there are faults on both sides in the servant problem. Unpunctual maids are often trying, incompetent, untrustworthy, and a thousand other things. But I don't believe that anything can excuse mistresses from this unfeeling and unintelligent attitude towards the maid as a creature instead of a human being.

When mistresses cease to assume this attitude, and get the thought that their maids really are women with natural desires for happiness and homelike rooms and appreciation and pretty clothes, perhaps girls will not consider housework the most degraded of occupations and will not prefer to it the most exhausting and ill-paid work in shop or factory.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a miss of eighteen. Right across the way from the place I work is a young man, working of about twenty. He is willing to talk to me and be a friend of mine and I am willing to be a friend of his. Will you please let me know how to get acquainted? He seems to be kind of shy. R.V.

Smile pleasantly at him when you meet him and if he seems to wish to talk to you, say something about the weather, or how near you work together, or something of that sort. If he sees that you are friendly without being forward, he will forget to be shy. But you'll surely scare him off if you are bold.

Dear Mrs. Thompson.—Please tell me who should bear the expense of announcing an engagement and sending out the wedding invitations? Some of my friends say a girl ought not to pay out one cent for anything when she is engaged and that it is the man's business to do all the spending. How should I announce my engagement? MYRTLE.

The only expense a man is expected to stand during the engagement is for such presents as he makes to his fiancée, and when he invites her to accompany him to a theater, luncheon, party or any entertainment. The parents of the engaged girl must pay the expenses of all engagement announcements, wedding invitations, etc.

Announce your engagement at a little luncheon given to your friends. Or your mother may send a notice of the engagement to the society editor of a newspaper, for publication.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am 19 years old, rather tall and dark-haired. My skin is a little dark, but it is clear, and my eyes are very black. I weigh 145 pounds. Do you think I am too heavy for my age and height? Would you call my type striking? My people all think I am too dark to be pretty, but a young man I knew says he thinks I am very handsome. Please tell me what you think. Your friend, L. E. C.

There is one beautiful thing about you, I think. You are not conceited, and I hope you never will be. A young man is probably right in his eyes. Beauty is according to the taste of the individual. There have been some very beautiful women of dark complexion, hair and eyes. You are a little heavy for your age, but if you are tall enough that will not matter. Exercise sufficiently so you will not grow fleshy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Do you think it proper for me to answer any young man's advertisement which I see in the personal column of a newspaper? LONELY GIRL.

Your own womanly modesty ought to answer that question for you. Go to some church that has a wide awake young people's society and get into the work. You will get acquainted with some nice young men there. If there is a neighborhood settlement house near you, you will meet interesting acquaintances there.

Dear Mrs. Thompson.—A young man friend of mine always wants to kiss me and he is very angry when I won't let him. We are not engaged, but we are going together. I don't think it proper to kiss a young man unless you are engaged, do you? I am really in love with this young man and don't want to lose him. Please tell me what to do to keep him my friend and make him behave. LYDA.

Have a talk with him, my dear. Tell him that you are not the kind of girl to be treated lightly and that you do not intend to give your kisses to any man but the one you expect to marry. Tell him that if he cannot respect your dignity, you will know he doesn't care for you and you will have to do without his friendship. It will be hard to do, but he will think all the more of you for being brave and standing up for your womanliness.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...
ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"What? Do you decline it?" cried the cardinal, with astonishment.
"I am in his majesty's guards, monseigneur, and I have no reason to be dissatisfied."
"But it appears to me that my guards are also his majesty's guards, and who ever serves in a French corps serves the king."

"Monseigneur, your eminence has ill understood my words."
"It is fit you should know, M. d'Artagnan, that I have received heavy and serious complaints against you. You do not consecrate your days and nights to the king's service alone."

D'Artagnan colored.
"In fact," said the cardinal, placing his hand upon a bundle of papers, "I have here a whole pile which concerns you. Come, reflect and decide."

"Your goodness confounds me, monseigneur," replied D'Artagnan, "but since monseigneur permits me to speak freely I will presume to say that all my friends are in the king's musketeers and guards, and, by an inconceivable fatality, all my enemies are in the service of your eminence."

"Do you happen to entertain the proud idea that I have not yet made you an offer equal to your merit?"

"Monseigneur, your eminence is a hundred times too kind on my account. The siege of La Rochelle is about to be resumed, monseigneur. I shall serve under the eye of your eminence, and if I have the good fortune to conduct myself at that siege in such a manner as to attract your attention, then I shall at least leave behind me some brilliant action to justify the protection with which you honor me."

"That is to say, you refuse to serve me, monseigneur," said the cardinal with a tone of vexation, through which, however, might be seen a sort of esteem. "Remain free, then, and preserve your hatreds and your sympathies."

"Monseigneur"—
"Well, well!" said the cardinal, "I don't wish you any ill, but you must be aware that it is quite trouble enough to defend and reward our friends; and let me give you a piece of advice: Take good care of yourself, M. d'Artagnan, for from the moment I withdraw my hand from you I would not give a penny for your life."

"I shall entertain whatever may happen," said D'Artagnan, placing his hand upon his breast and bowing, "an eternal gratitude toward your eminence for that which you have done for me."

"Well, let it be then, as you have said, M. d'Artagnan, we shall see each other again after the campaign. I will have my eye upon you, for I shall be there, and on our return, well—we will settle our account!"

"Ah, monseigneur!" cried D'Artagnan. "Spare me the weight of your anger; remain neuter, monseigneur, if you find that I act as a gentleman ought to act."

"Young man," said Richelieu, "if I am able to say to you again once more what I have said to you today, I promise you to do so."

D'Artagnan went out, but at the door his heart almost failed him and he felt inclined to return. But the noble and severe countenance of Athos crossed his mind. If he made the compact with the cardinal, which was required, Athos would no more give him his hand, Athos would renounce him.

The whole of the next day was spent in preparations for departure and the night in farewells.

At the first sound of the morning trumpet the friends separated, the musketeers hastening to the hotel of M. de Tréville, the guards to that of M. Dessestart. Each of the captains then led his company to the Louvre, where the king passed them in review.

The king was dull and appeared ill, which took off a little from his usual lofty carriage. In fact, the evening before, a fever had seized him in the midst of the parliament while he was holding his bed of justice. He had, not the less, decided upon setting out that same evening.

The review over, the guards set forward alone on their march, the musketeers waiting for the king. Aramis wrote a long letter. To whom nobody knew. Kitty, who was to set out that evening for Tours, was waiting in the next chamber.

D'Artagnan defied with his company. On arriving at the Faubourg St. Antoine he turned around to look gayly at the Bastille. But as it was the Bastille alone he looked at he did not observe milady, who, mounted upon a light chestnut horse, pointed him out with her finger to two ill looking men, who came close up to the ranks to take notice of him. To a look of interrogation which they made milady replied by a sign that that was the person. Then, certain that there could be no mistake in the execution of her orders, she turned her horse and disappeared.

The two men followed the company and at leaving the Faubourg St. Antoine mounted two horses.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Siege of La Rochelle.

THE siege of La Rochelle was one of the great political events of the reign of Louis XIII. and one of the great military enterprises of the cardinal.

Of the important cities given up by Henry IV. to the Huguenots as places of safety there only remained La Rochelle. It became necessary, therefore, to destroy this last bulwark of Calvinism.

Richelieu, as every one knows, had been in love with the queen. But Buckingham, who tried to aid La Rochelle, had had the advantage over him and in two or three circumstances, particularly that of the diamond studs.

It was, then, Richelieu's object not only to get rid of an enemy of France, but to avenge himself of a rival.

Richelieu knew that while combating England he was combating Buckingham, that when triumphing over England he triumphed over Buckingham. In short that in humiliating England in the eyes of Europe he humiliated Buckingham in the eyes of the queen.

The first advantage had been gained by Buckingham. Arriving unexpectedly in sight of the Isle de Re, with ninety vessels and nearly 20,000 men, he had surprised the Count de Toiras, who commanded for the king in the Isle. He had, after a sanguinary conflict, effected his landing.

The Count de Toiras entered into the citadel St. Martin with his garrison and threw a hundred men into a little fort, called the fort of La Pree.

This event had hastened the resolutions of the cardinal, and till the king and he could take the command of the siege of La Rochelle, which was determined on, he had sent the Duke of Orleans to direct the first operations and had ordered all the troops he could dispose of to march toward the theater of war. It was of this detachment, sent as a vanguard, that our friend D'Artagnan formed a part.

The king, as we have said, was to follow as soon as his bed of justice had been held, but on rising from his bed of justice on the 28th of June he felt himself attacked by fever. He was, notwithstanding, anxious to set out, but his illness becoming more serious, he was forced to stop at Ville-roi.

Now whenever the king stopped the musketeers stopped. It resulted that D'Artagnan found himself separated from his good friends—Athos, Aramis and Porthos.

He, however, arrived without accident in the camp established before La Rochelle on the 10th of the month of September of the year 1627.

The guards under the command of M. Dessestart took up their quarters at the Minimes; but, as we know, D'Artagnan, preoccupied by the ambition of passing into the musketeers, had formed but few friendships among his comrades.

While walking solitarily late in the afternoon along a pretty little road which led from the camp to the village of Angoulême he saw the barrel of a musket glitter from behind a hedge and another on the other side of the road.

He threw himself upon the ground. At the same instant the gun was fired, and he heard the whistling of a ball pass over his head.

No time was to be lost. D'Artagnan sprang up with a bound, and at the same instant the ball from the other musket tore up the stones near him.

D'Artagnan was not one of those uselessly brave men who seek a ridiculous death, in order that it may be said of them that they did not give way a single step.

"If there should be a third shot," said he, "I am a lost man."

He immediately therefore took to his heels, but a third shot was fired, and this time so well aimed that it struck his hat and carried it ten paces from him.

As he, however, had no other hat, he picked up this as he ran and arrived at his quarters, very pale and quite out of breath.

It must be a vengeance of milady's, he decided.

He endeavored in vain to remember the faces or dress of the assassins. He had escaped so rapidly that he had not had leisure to remark anything.

"Ah, my poor friends!" murmured D'Artagnan. "Where are you? How sadly I want you!"

D'Artagnan remained all the next day in his quarters, assigning as a reason to himself that the weather was bad.

At 9 o'clock next morning the drums beat to arms. The Duke of Orleans visited the posts. Monsieur passed along the front of the line. Then all the superior officers approached him to pay their compliments.

At the expiration of a minute or two M. Dessestart made D'Artagnan a sign to come to him. He left the ranks and advanced to receive his orders.

"Monsieur is about to ask for some men of good courage for a dangerous mission."

In fact, the Rochellais had made a sortie during the night and had retaken a bastion of which the royal army had gained possession two days before. The matter was to ascertain by reconnoitering whether the enemy guarded this bastion.

At the end of a few minutes monseigneur raised his voice and said:

"I want for this mission three or four volunteers led by a man who can be depended upon."

"As to the man to be depended upon I have him under my hand, monseigneur," said M. Dessestart, pointing to D'Artagnan.

"Four men of good will who will risk being killed with me," said D'Artagnan, raising his sword.

Two of his comrades of the guards immediately sprang forward, and two other soldiers having joined them the number was deemed sufficient.

D'Artagnan set out with his four companions and followed the trench. The two guards marched abreast with him, and the two soldiers followed behind.

They arrived thus, screened by the lining of the trench, till they came within a hundred paces of the bastion. There, on turning round, D'Artagnan perceived that the two soldiers had disappeared. He thought that, beginning to be afraid, they had stayed behind.

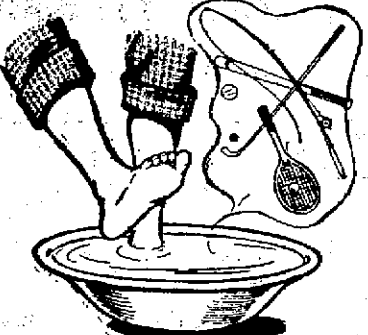

At the turning of the countescarp they found themselves within about sixty paces of the bastion. They saw no one, and the bastion seemed abandoned, but all at once a circle of smoke enveloped the giant of stone, and a dozen balls came whistling round D'Artagnan and his companions.

They knew all they wished to know. The bastion was guarded. A longer stay in this dangerous spot would have been useless imprudence.

On arriving at the angle of the trench which was to serve them as a rampart one of the guards fell. A ball passed through his breast. The other, who was safe and sound, continued his way toward the camp.

D'Artagnan was not willing to abandon his companion thus and stooped down to raise him and assist him in regaining the lines. But at this moment two shots were fired. One ball hit the head of the already wounded guard, and the other was flattened against a rock after having passed within two inches of D'Artagnan.

There is quite a fad among women who take pride in their well shod feet for the little footstools that their great-grandmothers used to use. To the great-grandmothers they were a necessity, since they kept the feet above the draft line, but for their degenerate offspring they serve the more frivolous purpose of putting pretty feet where no one can help noticing them.

Sound Advice for Emigrants.

Writing in the "British News of Canada," an Edinburgh man, who went out to the Dominion six years ago and in that time has been in every province, says by way of advice to intending emigrants: "Come out to Canada, by all means; there is work for you if you are not too proud (my first job was the pick and shovel), but don't by any means come out here and think you are just as good as the man who hired you. Do your work, hold your tongue, and don't always be telling us how you do things at home; we are tired of hearing about it. Finally, remember that the man who pays you wages is the boss, in spite of the yarns of the emigration agents."

Lead Pencils.

"I don't think I'm exactly lazy and I have a fair amount of intelligence, but I cannot sharpen a lead pencil. I've been trying to learn for—well, I won't say how long, but it's many, many years. I couldn't sharpen them when I was little. I couldn't sharpen them when I was big. I can't sharpen them now that I am bigger. Pencil sharpeners don't sharpen them any better than I do. Or than you do, I wager, if you're a woman! When I'm rich I shall hire a man to sharpen my pencils for me every morning—no change."

Family Groups.

I know some people who have been indulging in a family group. Which is all right, if they feel that way about it. But where are they going to keep it? I have one down cellar and another under the bed and a third in storage. There was a mistake made in the order, so we each got three apiece. Any one has a right to be in a family group, but no one has a right to show it to his friends.—Exchange.

Magic of a Siphon.

When a pipe shaped like the inverted letter 'U', in which the arms are equal length, is filled with water, and each pipe is put into a separate vessel full of water, "the downward pull," or weight of the liquid in each of the two vessels will balance the other, and if the water is at the same level in the two vessels, it will remain at that level in both vessels. But if the level of the water in one vessel is lower than the other, since the two vessels are connected with a pipe full of water, the water will run down from the higher to the lower. This constitutes what is called a siphon. A siphon itself has no more magic about it than a pencil has when it falls, or than any other similar phenomenon in nature, yet some of the siphon's manifestations seem to be not only magical, but almost incredible.

Old and New Violins.

An interesting test of the relative merits of old violins and new was made the other day by the American guild of violinists in session at Chicago. It may be recalled that some years ago some experiments of the same sort were made in Paris, with the unexpected result that listeners not knowing what sort they were hearing awarded the palm to the new instruments. This is absurd, of course, for if a Stradivarius costs $5,000 or $10,000, how can it fail to be better than a new violin worth only a few hundred dollars or perhaps less? Yet there is a heretical sect which holds that the superiority of the old Cremona makers is a myth, and the Chicago experiment was meant to settle that point. It proved, however, inconclusive, for while the old violins as a rule carried off the honors the first prize fell to a violin only three years old. Nineteen instruments were entered, including a Nicholas Amati of 1643 and a Jacobus Stainer of 1650.

Wants His Back Pay.

A circus employee of Maryville has sued the company for which he formerly worked, asking $55.10 back wages, and in the meantime he has attached the alligator. An alligator is our idea of nothing to get attached to—or to get attached to you.—Kansas City Times.

Deafness Appreciated.

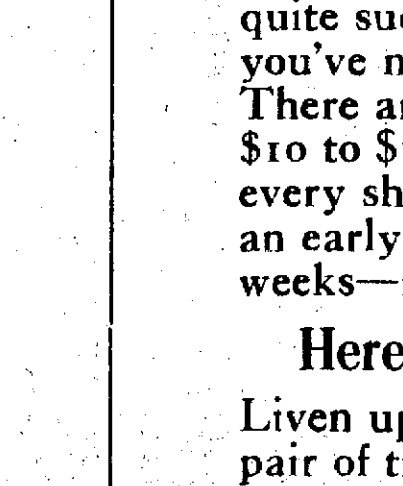

Lord North was once asked why he did not subscribe for a certain series of concerts, as his brother, the bishop, had done. "If I were as deaf as my brother," he answered, "I would." In "The Musical Amateur" Mr. Robert Haven Schaffer tells Berlioz's story of the young woman in the music store to indicate the sort of performance whose audience would find deafness a positive boon. "But, mademoiselle," suggested the clerk, "will not this piece in five sharps perhaps be rather difficult?" "Poh!" she replied, disdainfully. "That is all one to me. Whenever I find more than two sharps or flats I scratch them out with my penknife."—Youth's Companion.

Those Not Versifying Are Play-writing and Here is Aid to All That Would Write.

The saying that everybody either has, or is writing a play, has become a bromide.

It is even more generally true that practically everyone at some time in his life writes poetry or at least tries his hand at versifying.

Someone has said that there is something wrong with the person who doesn't feel an impulse to burst into verse at some psychological moment.

Yield to that impulse! There might be some great ideas under your hat if they were but correctly expressed and if you only had a guide to correct expression.

That is just what The Gazette proposes giving you.

In compiling the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, Illustrated, Dr. Harry Thurston Peck, the editor, engaged the assistance of Charles F. Johnson Ph. D., professor in Trinity College, who contributed an authoritative work upon prosody, giving anyone who cares to read easily understood instructions upon correct expression in verse.

This is but one of the many features to be found between the covers of the illustrious lexicon, which is profusely illustrated in colors and monochrome.

This Dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or by their successors.

It has been revised and brought up to the present date in accordance with the best authorities from the greatest universities, and is published by a well known Publishing Co. of New York City.

It is the book you should have had long ago. Why delay getting it now.

Six coupons and a small expense bonus get it for you.

DISTURBANCES DUE BEFORE END OF WEEK

Foster Predicts Warm Waves And Drd Weather From July 27 To August 6. Hot Winds In Few Places.

Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross continent July 27 to 31 and August 1 to 5, warm waves July 26 to 30 and 21 to August 4, cool waves July 29 to August 2 to 5. These disturbances, covering July 27 to August 6, will cause a rise in temperatures, a decrease in rainfall, drought in many places and hot winds in a few places. That spell of crop-weather will inaugurate the most destructive drought of recent years and while it will not be general it will be severe enough to very considerably affect prices of cotton, grain and rough feed.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about August 7, cross Pacific slope by close of 8, great central valleys 9 to 11, eastern sections 12. Warm waves will cross Pacific slope about August 7, great central valleys 9, eastern sections 11. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about August 10, great central valleys 12, eastern sections 13.

This will bring the master hot wave of the year, particularly to the drought sections. Hot winds will damage corn in some sections and drought will cover large parts of the corn and cotton belts. We can not stop the drought but we can prepare for it. I am writing this bulletin June 19 because I will be away from Washington for a month. September oats are selling at Chicago at 40 cents and I believe will bring 45 before the middle of September. We are not dealing, have no interest in grain and none in cotton, and if these staple articles do not sell at higher prices before first of October, you can set down one against Foster's weather bureau.

By first of October we will be ready to publish a general forecast of 1913 crop-weather. There is some question as to whether we should do this. One thing stands in the way is an argument against publishing crop-weather forecasts so long in advance is that the great speculators manipulate prices of agricultural products, sometimes depressing them 25 per cent below their actual values in order to buy cheaply and then inflating them as much above, thereby making a profit of 40 to 50 per cent.

This is unfair to the farmer, the cash grain and cotton dealer and those who buy or sell for future delivery. Foster's weather bureau desires to support and be fair with all legitimate business but does not consider the manipulation of markets as legitimate. We are gradually putting into practical use a great weather forecast system and one of the questions to decide is how long in advance to publish the crop-weather forecasts.

It is believed that the hurricane and tornado can be correctly forecasted and located and in order to complete working out these problems we are completing records of these mighty forces covering a hundred years or more. We have the cold waves well worked out and will put the improved forecast of them into practical use next autumn. We believe the tides to be of electrical origin and now have tables of records which will be used to demonstrate that fact.

Eminent authorities believe that the sunspots are caused through electrical forces set in motion by bunching of the planets on one side of the sun and that those electrical disturbances reach our earth and cause our weather changes. We do not quite agree with this idea but have compiled the sunspot records from 1749 to date with which this question will be worked out.

It has long been suspected that certain positions of the planets cause electrical disturbances which increase the growth of bacteria in our atmosphere and thus cause contagious disease and epidemics. We are compiling records of these in order to work out this problem and be able to forestall these epidemics.

RUN JOHN SHERMAN FOR COUNTY CLERK

Democrats Make Change in Ticket in Favor of Town of Fulton Man
Before Adjourning
Yesterday

An important change in the make-up of the county democratic ticket as decided upon at the conference held at the county house yesterday afternoon, was made before adjourning when the name of John Sherman of the town of Fulton was submitted for Albert Rader of Edgerton, for the candidate for the county clerkship. Mr. Rader's friends from Edgerton, stated that he did not care to make the run for the office and recommended Mr. Sherman as the party's choice. Mr. Sherman's name was substituted for that of Rader without opposition. Mr. Sherman is at present supervisor from his township and has been a member of important committees on the county board.

"I was especially pleased with the large attendance at the conference yesterday," said county chairman E. H. Connell today. "The large number from outside of the county was gratifying and prospects are very encouraging for a big democratic vote." There were about fifty present at the meeting and considerable enthusiasm was shown.

As things stand at present there will be no contest in the democratic ranks in this county at the September primaries with possibly one exception. It is understood that James Lamb of this city, may be advanced as a candidate for the state senate in opposition to J. F. Hutchinson who was named at the conference yesterday. Friends of Mr. Lamb are urging him to announce his candidacy and they point to the creditable showing he has made when a candidate for the assembly.

In the state situation both Karel and Schmitz have substantial followings in Rock county. A Karel club has been organized and J. J. Cunningham of this city has been appointed on the state advisory committee which will further the candidacy of Mr. Schmitz.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE 1913 MODELS.
(By Howard L. Rann.)

We are informed by the arbiters of fashion, who do most of their arbiting in some foreign land, where they cannot be reached by the ultimate consumer, that the 1913 models in hobbie skirts will make the 1912 style look like a wire-hoop. Look at Mother Hubbard of the vintage of 1852.

At present, 2 1/2 yards of sheeting are required to erect a tube skirt which a woman has to drop into from the top of a step-ladder. This voluminous and loose-flowing garment is now to be discarded in favor of a waist which consumes only 1 1/4 yards and requires the wearer to get along without any hips or waist.

The obtrusive hip will not be in anybody's repertoire next year who does not wish to take other people's dust. The receding instep of the 20-inch waist will also become a plaintive memory.

It is proposed to start the waist immediately below the chin and allow it to taper gently to the ankles in a neat peg-top effect. This will be a great boon to stout society leaders who have always worn more waist than they knew what to do with.

The general effect of this reform will be to give woman the chaste, severe lines of a hoe handle, without preventing her in the slightest degree from tripping on the top step and falling down two flights of stairs in a vivacious parabola.

After a woman has been poured into one of these skirts in a breathless condition, she will not be able to do much of anything except pant in a hurried and unostentatious manner. But she will be in style from all points of the compass.

Some of these 1913 skirt models come in sections, like prepared roofing, and can be put on by anybody who has a plumber's sense with the aid of a bottle of liquid glue. The most extensive kinds are guaranteed to fit like an alpaca coat in a stiff breeze.

Women who expect to get in on the 1913 models should fast three times a day, between meals, run around a half-mile track before breakfast and abstain from starchy foods.

Stone in Bladder Removed Without Surgical Operation

In the Spring of 1904, I was confined to my bed with Kidney Trouble and thought that I would never recover. I took a lot of medicine but did not realize any benefit from anything. I finally saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root advertisement and sent for a sample bottle and thought the sample bottle helped me, so I bought more of the medicine from my Druggist, and after using a few bottles discharged a very large stone from my bladder.

After passing this stone my health was very much improved and I have been able to continue my business without any serious sickness.

What Is Dry Cleaning?

In 1866 a Frenchman discovered the process of washing with Naptha and Soap, and the success of this method was due to the fact that it ALTERED NEITHER THE FIT, COLOR OR TEXTURE OF THE GARMENT, while "wet" cleaning with soap and water usually affected one or all.

The phrase "Dry Cleaning" originated in the fact that no water is used in the process. The garments are washed in the purest naptha, which removes all spots, leaving the cloth in the finest possible condition. After the naptha bath the garments are thoroughly dried, aired and then pressed.

Some dry cleaners use acid in their process.

WE USE NO ACID WHATEVER

We have installed the MOST UP-TO-DATE MACHINERY with which no acids are necessary. We guarantee that our process does not injure the finest fabrics.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 25, 1872.—Mystery: Quite a sensation was occasioned last night in the usually placid precincts of the Myers house which forms an aspect of mystery. At two o'clock a couple of men drove to the hotel and asked for Mr. Dunn. Mr. Dunn took charge of their horse and vehicle. On getting into the carriage he found a pocketbook, which he handed to one of the men, and the two entered the house. After leaving the horse at the stable, Mr. Dunn turned immediately, expecting to escort his new guests to rooms, but they were nowhere to be found. Presuming they had gone to some saloon after a sleeping potion, Mr. Dunn sallied out in search of them. The saloons were all closed. A thorough search of the house resulted in the conviction that they were not concealed therein. Mr. Dunn finally retired for the night, convinced that a series of foul deeds of some sort were being enacted in this city. On "turning out" this morning he repaired at once to Wood's livery stable. He was informed that his nocturnal callers were formerly employed in this city, and they had started for their destination, whatever that was, about half an hour previously.

Later—Since the above was in type facts have come to our knowledge which prove that Mr. Dunn's impression as to the character of the men were not far from correct. The horse which brought them to this city, arrived at the Myers house at two o'clock precisely, and had evidently been driven at a furious speed. City Marshal Allen, of Beloit, arrived here at noon today with the information that between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock last night, the residence of George Smith, of that city, was entered and property taken, consisting of three coats, two or three pairs of pants, a certificate of deposit for $352, a promissory note for $180, etc. Suspicion at once rested upon the two men in question. Search was instituted for them. At three o'clock this afternoon, one of the men, who gave his name as Dole, was found in the saloon of Frank Richards and lodged in jail. The horse, which is believed to have been stolen, was found hitched on Main street, a short distance from the saloon. As to the whereabouts of the other, Dole says he went to Milton this morning, with the intention of returning on the afternoon train. It is probable that Dole concocted the Milton story to put the officers on the wrong track.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

How dear to my heart is the big soda fountain that stands in the front of the pharmacist's store, all gleaming with silver and celluloid mountings, and loaded with syrups and flavors galore! How sweet, when the weather is hotter than Madras, to go to the shop of the druggist it is, and order some sods for yourself and the ladies, from out of that fountain that's loaded with fizz! That big marble fountain, that cold, clammy fountain, that brass THE SODA FOUNTAIN. To a fountain that's loaded with fizz! And equally dear is the clerk who attends it, the beautiful youth with a dignity high; if you are too fussy he speedsily ends it, by freezing you up with a glance from his eye. The hauteur of kings and the bearing of princes, the frigid reserve of Napoleon are his, while mixing his extracts of lemons and quinces, and working the fountain that turns out the fizz; the tall, stately fountain, the gas inspired fountain, the cold, gleaming fountain that turns out the fizz!

Too Steady.
"Haven't you a home?" asked the sympathetic citizen. "Yep," answered Plodding Pete, "I had a nice home, but de first t'ing I knew it had a woodpile and a garden and a pump. And den it got so much like a steady job dat I resigned."

In these days of high cost of living, a medicine that gets a man up out of bed and able to work in a few days is a safe and valuable remedy. John Heath, Michigan Bar, Cal., says: "I had kidney and bladder trouble for nearly six years, and was confined to my bed, unable to turn without help. Soon after I commenced using Foley Kidney Pills and was relieved at once." His example is worth following. Foley Kidney Pills will do for others just as much as they have done for John Heath.
